"Vaccinations & Boosters for a Pandemic and Where Do We Go from Here - 2022"

As the year 2021 comes to a close, I'm reminded of our mission & vision statement so that we can renew our focus with this 4th quarter edition of our ACTAI Newsletter.

We are an education and community service organization dedicated to maintaining the traditions of the Tuskegee Airmen and preserving the legacy of the first generation of African American military aviators of the Second World War. The Atlanta Chapter Tuskegee Airmen reflects our culture and our inter-generational values. Our membership includes men and women of different races, ages, including military and civilian, veterans and non-veterans.

Georgians are now facing viruses such as Covid-19, a Delta and Omicron variants; yet continuing to be strongly encouraged to get a COVID-19 vaccine and booster. Many of our fellow Tuskegee Airmen have been vaccinated at this time. Wearing masks, observing social distancing, and washing and sanitizing your hands in accordance with the guidelines published by the CDC are still deemed as daily. We will continue to serve in the virtual GOTO-Meetings capacity while operating until we are able to make a qualified decision to reconvene our meetings, gatherings, activities and events until further notice.

Be SAFE and STAY SAFE!!

Aliyyah Adio-Fardaws

A first-generation Nigerian-American. Aliyyah Adio-Fardaws was originally born and raised in Oakland, California, and currently lives in Atlanta, Georgia.

Ms. Adio's father, is also a pilot and flight instructor, who instilled in her a love for aviation. For almost two decades, he ran a flight school in Oakland and Hayward California which has helped a number of minority students start their careers in aviation. And, Aliyyah father's contribution to aviation has encouraged her to carry on his legacy. Although she was too young to fly with him, she was fortunate to travel across the world with family and experience the sensation of taking off and landing; thus, getting an appreciation for the beauty-of-the-skies.

Ms. Adio began exploring aviation by acquiring her workshop assembly certificate at Zenith Aircraft Company where she learned how to build an airplane with students from the International College of Aeronautics. Aliyyah received her first discovery flight at the International College of Aeronautics. After the program, she worked as a commercial aircraft fueler with Delta Airlines. She is currently an Aviation Management major at Middle Georgia State University with a background in Dance and the Performing Arts. Also, she is a part of the RedTail Scholarship Program and a member of the Atlanta Chapter Tuskegee Airmen, Atlanta, Georgia.

HISTORY: UNSUNG HEROES

The Tuskegee Airmen Story -Pantelleria Island Attack-

By Herman S. Wolk June 1, 2002

<https://www.airforcemag.com/article/0602pantelleria/>

In January 1941 the War Department formed the all-black 99th Pursuit Squadron of the U.S. Army Air Corps (later the U.S. Army Air Forces), to be trained using single-engine planes at the segregated Tuskegee Army Air Field at Tuskegee, Alabama. The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People (NAACP), the black press, and others had been lobbying hard for the government to allow African Americans to become military pilots. However, neither the NAACP nor the most-involved black newspapers approved the solution of creating separate black units; they believed that approach simply perpetuated segregation and discrimination. Nevertheless, largely at the behest of Pres. Franklin D. Roosevelt, a separate unit was created. The Tuskegee base opened on July 19, and the first class graduated the following March. Lieut. Col. Benjamin Oliver Davis, Jr., became the squadron's commander. The Tuskegee Airmen received further training in French Morocco before their first mission, on June 2, 1943, a strafing attack on Pantelleria Island, an Italian island in the Mediterranean Sea. The US Twelfth Air Force and a number of groups from Ninth Air Force also took part in Corkscrew. One of the Twelfth units seeing its first action was the Tuskegee-trained 99th Fighter Squadron. The airmen of that unit—the first African-American airmen to fly in combat for the Army Air Forces—became known later as the Tuskegee Airmen. The 99th, which had just arrived in North Africa to reinforce the XII Air Support Command, flew P-40s as part of Corkscrew. In 1943, the World War II Allies launched Corkscrew, a military operation whose aim was to seize the Mediterranean island of Pantelleria. It was an armed action meant to pave the way for an Allied invasion of Sicily and then the Italian mainland, but it turned out to be far more than that. By the time Corkscrew was finished, it had

The Tuskegee Airmen Story

-Pantelleria Island Attack-

The importance of Pantelleria Island itself stemmed from its location—smack in the middle of the Mediterranean Sea. Some 53 miles to the west was Tunisia. To the northeast, 63 miles away, was Sicily. Thus, Pantelleria lay astride the route from North Africa, where the Allies earlier in 1943 had routed Axis forces, and Italy, the next target for invasion. Between May 8 and June 11 in 1943, Allied aircraft flew 5,285 bombing sorties against targets on Pantelleria and dropped 6,313 tons of bombs on Italian and German forces ensconced there. The operation called for using sustained aerial bombardment to crush enemy power on the island and therefore reduce the number of Allied ground forces needed to capture and hold it. The plan succeeded—dramatically so. In fact, the aerial offensive marked the first time in history that an enemy land force was compelled to surrender in the absence of an accompanying ground invasion. Saturation bombing, plus limited shelling by the Royal Navy, broke the enemy's defenses and will to resist.

For all that, it was an offensive that almost didn't happen.

Later that year the army activated three more squadrons that, joined in 1944 by the 99th, constituted the 332nd Fighter Group. It fought in the European theatre and was noted as one of the Army Air Forces' most successful and most-decorated escort groups. The Tuskegee Air Field program expanded to train pilots and crew to operate two-engine B-25 medium bombers. These men became part of the second black flying group, the 477th Bombardment Group. Shortages of crew members, technicians, and equipment troubled the 477th, and World War II ended before it could be deployed overseas. Altogether, 992 pilots graduated from the Tuskegee Air Field courses, and they flew 1,578 missions and 15,533 sorties, destroyed 261 enemy aircraft, and won more than 850 medals. ###END ( By Herman S. Between the start of June 1944 and the end of April 1945, the 332nd Fighter Group flew 312 missions for which we have records. Sources: monthly histories of the 332nd Fighter Group for June, July, August, September, October, November, and December 1944, and monthly histories of the 332nd Fighter Group for January, February, March, April, and May 1945, which also contain the narrative mission reports. Call number is GP-332-HI followed by month and year. Note: Mission Report 24 actually describes two different missions flown on 13 July 1944. For the total number of missions, the 99th Fighter Squadron flew before it began flying combat missions with the 332nd Fighter Group in July 1944, the source is the June 1944 history of the 99th Fighter Squadron (SQ-FI-99-HI). The history notes that the squadron flew its 500th combat mission on June 2. For each following day in June, there is a number of the missions the squadron flew per day. Adding up those numbers, after June 2, results in a total of 77 missions, for a total of 577 combat missions of the 99th Fighter Squadron before July 1944, when the 99th began flying missions with the 332nd Fighter Group. *Researcher: Daniel L. ### Aviator's Quotes

** DO WHILE YOU CAN ****

“Our story is not just about what we did, but about education and taking advantage of opportunities that exist. ”

Brigadier General Charles Edward McGee (December 7, 1919 – January 16, 2022) was an American fighter pilot who was one of the first African American aviators in the United States military and one of the last living members of the Tuskegee Airmen. McGee first began his career in World War II flying with the Tuskegee Airmen, an all African American military pilot group at a time of segregation in the armed forces. His military aviation career lasted 30 years in which McGee flew 409 combat missions in World War II, the Korean War and Vietnam War. For his service, McGee received the Distinguished Flying Cross with two oak leaf clusters and the Bronze Star Medal, along with many other military honors. In 2007, as a member of the Tuskegee Airmen, McGee received the Congressional Gold Medal. In 2011, he was inducted into the National Aviation Hall of Fame and in February 2020, was promoted to Brigadier General..
